Snake, floats and football wrap up Homecoming '78

Carbondale should continue experiencing lots of loose feet and dancin' as Homecoming 1978 concludes this weekend.

Homecoming events will include a snake dance and bonfire on Friday night, with the parade, alumni recognition luncheon and football game on Saturday. The theme of Homecoming 1978 is "Foot Loose and Dancin' Free."

The snake dance, which will form at each of the housing areas at 7:30 p.m. Friday, will be led by the Marching Salukis, cheerleaders and pom-pom girls. They will lead the snake from each of the housing areas to the traditional bonfire, which will be at 8 p.m. at the north end of the Arena parking lot. President Warren Brandt, Athletics Director Gale Sayers and Coach Ray Dempsey will be present.

Following Friday's activities, the parade will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday at Walnut Street and University Avenue, proceeding south on University. The parade will feature floats, marching bands and the newly-elected homecoming queen.

The Alumni Recognition Luncheon will be from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the Student Center, with tickets available at $5 per person at the Alumni Office and Student Center Ticket Office. At the luncheon, alumni achievement awards, the great teacher award and President Brandt's "State of the University" address will be given.

The homecoming football game will be at 2 p.m. at McAndrew Stadium, with SIU facing the Northern Illinois Huskies. Neoma Kinney, ticket manager, said there was no count available on the number of tickets sold, but that plenty were still available.

New fee needs trustee's approval

Rec Board OKs $6.50 fee increase

By Joe Sobczyk
Staff Writer

The Intramural-Recreational Sports Advisory Board voted to endorse a $6.50 increase in the $11.75 Student Recreation fee Thursday afternoon.

The fee increase, if approved by the Board of Trustees at its February meeting, will appear on fall 1979 fee statements.

The advisory board voted 6-1-1 to approve the increase proposal presented at the board's previous meeting by Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs.

Linda Romano, representing the Graduate Student Council, registered the only dissenting vote.

Romano said, "My constituency said, 'You will not vote for it.'"

Swinburne said the increase will be presented to the Board of Trustees at its December meeting.

Under a board policy adopted last

June, student fee increases must first be brought before the board for discussion, with an actual vote taken at the next meeting.

The advisory board's vote followed a 30-minute discussion on the form of the endorsement. The board decided that its chairman, John Laws, a representative from intramural sports, should draft a letter to Swinburne explaining the board's endorsement with the stipulation that the extra fees would be used for the operation and maintenance of the Recreation Building. None of the funds are to be used to expand recreation programs according to the advisory board's decision.

Swinburne said he will request a second increase in the recreation fee next year to support operation and maintenance of the building for the 1980-81 school year.

He said none of the $11.75 SRF students now pay is used to run the Recreation Building. The building is currently operated with funds collected in previous years.

Swinburne said there is $770,000 in the SRF coffers from those past collections. Operation of the Recreation Building this year cost $615,000, with the state providing $138,000.

With the residual funds dwindling, Swinburne said, an additional $275,000 is needed to operate the building at its present level.

That money will have to be made up by the students, Swinburne said.

Although the state is expected to increase its aid to $160,000 in fiscal year 1980, Swinburne said increases in utility rates could push the year's total operation and maintenance bill to almost $700,000.

"I think the state ought to support it," Swinburne said.

The state funds the Recreation Building on the basis of a figure computed by the Illinois Board of Higher Education which gives the school $2.22 per square foot for 40 percent of the time that the building is used for academic purposes.

However, Swinburne said that because of the high ceilings in the gymnasium and pool areas, the actual cost of operating the building is approximately $4 per square foot.

Swinburne said, "We will continue to fight the BHE position that the students pay for the operation and maintenance of this building." But he added, "I also recognize when I've been beaten."

Sam Rinella, director of University Housing and member of the advisory board, said, "We're really handcuffed."

The Recreation Building was constructed and has been operated by almost $5 million collected from students since 1965.

Overall percentage unchanged

Percentage of black freshmen down

By Ray Valek
Staff Writer

For the second consecutive year, the percentage of black freshmen enrolled at SIU has decreased, but the percentage of blacks accepted to the University has remained virtually the same, according to figures of the Office of Admissions and Records.

This fall, 13.07 percent of the freshmen are black. Last fall, 15.38 percent were black. During last semester 1976, the figure was 16.8 percent.

The 2.31 percent decrease between fall 1977 and fall 1978 represents about 100 students.

However, 10.1 percent of the students admitted to the University this fall were black, while 10 percent of those admitted last fall were black.

B.K. Browning, director of admissions and records, said the decrease in enrollment despite the almost identical percentage of admissions could possibly be explained by fewer continuing freshmen students—those who may have attended the University for a semester, but dropped out while still freshmen.

Jerre Pfaff, associate director of admissions and records, said in a memorandum that the decreases did not occur because of the campus admissions policy.

In October 1976, the Board of Trustees approved stricter admissions standards that said beginning students must rank in the upper half of their high school class and have a composite score of at least 16 on the American College Testing examination. If students finish in the lower half of their class, they can be admitted with an ACT composite of 20 or above.

Before the new policy, students could be admitted who either finished in the upper half of their high school class or had an ACT score of 20.

Board members warned the time that the higher requirement might restrict non-white students' access to higher education.

Pfaff said the Illinois State Scholarship Commission has delayed processing student applications for grants, which may have caused some accepted freshman not to enroll at SIU.

"If a student does not know what his award will be, it's hard for him to commit himself," Pfaff said. He added that many new students are probably not aware that tuition and fees can be deferred while waiting for grant money.

Pfaff also said the shortage of University housing may have discouraged some accepted freshmen from enrolling.

The percentage of white students among freshmen is larger than last year, when 79.71 percent of the freshmen class were white. This fall, 80.65 percent are white.

City officials draft conservation plan

By Pam Bailey
Staff Writer

In the 22 years leading up to the 21st century, city planners are anticipating an increasing need to conserve the area's nonrenewable natural resources and to begin phasing in alternative forms of energy. When that time comes, Carbondale plans to be ready.

City officials have drafted an aggressive, innovative program designed to educate the public on home and business conservation methods and to demonstrate their use in community demonstration facilities. However, it is an expensive project and the city is depending on the success of its grant application to the Community Energy Conservation Awards Program.

The grant program was announced by the State Institute of Natural Resources in August. Carbondale is only one of many cities competing for the $150,000 offered by the institute. No more than $25,000 will be granted to any one community.

The purpose of the awards program is to encourage community-based energy conservation projects. A. William Moss, assistant city manager for purchasing, property, said that in order to be eligible, the applicant must demonstrate:

—That the proposed program will be action-oriented and have short-term results.

—That the program is applicable to other local governments.

—That the program will be coordinated with existing on-going energy conservation activities funded through resources such as the Community Development Block Grant program and revenue sharing.

The city has requested a total of $24,538—about half the cost of the entire program, which is estimated to be $42,311. The remaining $17,773 will be funded mostly by the Shawnee Solar Project, a not-for-profit solar energy development group which has been working in the city for the past year. If funding for the project is approved, the entire program will be administered by the Solar Project.

The rest of the matching funds will be provided by the city—from its general administration fund and its CDBG Housing Rehabilitation monies—and possibly by a local consortium consisting of the university, Central Illinois Public Service and local insulation contractors, Moss said.

The city will probably be notified whether its application has been accepted in mid-November, Moss added. Once the funds are received, the program could be in operation by mid-1979, he said.

The major programs in the city's plan include:

—An Infrared Flyover Program. This will help citizens pinpoint heat loss through building rooftops by making aerial infrared photographs available for inspection. Total cost: $6,000.

—Alternative energy workshops for the community, commercial and industrial sectors. One all-day management workshop will be offered for both the industrial and commercial sectors, and a series of six seminars will be offered to residents. Estimated cost for one workshop: between $1,000 and $1,500.

—The use of Shawnee Solar Project personnel to conduct energy audits of city-owned facilities. Total cost: $6,859.

—Creation of a Community Appropriate Technology Office. This would be a local center for public information designed to provide access to basic information about appropriate and available technology in order to increase residents' level of energy self-sufficiency. Total cost: $18,807.

—Development of a Low-Technology Solar Outreach Program to demonstrate how current solar energy technology can be used in local low-income homes. The city proposes to build and install a low-cost solar system in a community structure which has been rehabilitated through the CDBG Housing Rehabilitation Program. Total cost: $6,000.

—Organization and promotion of a Community Low-Technology Solar Design Awards Program. Anyone would be eligible to submit a home energy conservation plan, with the designers of the best plans to receive up to $1,000 in prize money.

Noting that many other cities are competing for state grant money along with Carbondale, Moss said he expects the city to receive only about $10,000 if Carbondale receives less money than it requested, as Moss anticipates, some parts of the program will have to be cut.

SIU coed raped on campus; police searching for suspect

SIU police are looking for a suspect in connection with the reported rape of an SIU student in Thompson Woods Wednesday night.

The incident was reported to SIU police by a friend of the victim at 10:40 p.m.

According to police, the victim was walking through Thompson Woods from the Student Center along a paved path about 9 p.m. She approached a "dark area" of the woods when the suspect grabbed her from behind and dragged her into the woods, where he raped her.

The victim was able to walk back to the Student Center after the attack and found her boyfriend, police said. The victim talked with her boyfriend and other friends before reporting the incident to authorities, police said.

Friends took the victim to Carbondale Memorial Hospital, where she was treated and released. Police said the victim had no other injuries besides the rape.

Police were able to make a composite drawing of the suspect from the victim's testimony. They said the suspect they are looking for is a white male about 20 to 25 years old, 5-foot-11 to 6 feet tall, 180 to 190 pounds, with light hair, cut in a Dutch boy style and collar-length in back, wearing dark clothes and wire-framed glasses with rectangular lenses. The victim said the suspect spoke with a clipped accent.

This is a composite drawing by SIU police of a man being sought in connection with the rape of an SIU student in Thompson Woods. He is described as being 20 to 25 years old, Caucasian, 5'11" to 6' tall, weighing 180 lbs., with light, silky hair near collar length in back, wearing wire framed glasses with rectangular lenses. Anyone knowing someone fitting this description is asked to contact SIU police.

Carbondale salesman robbed of $300 during street holdup

A Carbondale man was robbed of $300 as he was getting out of his car Wednesday morning.

According to Carbondale police, Edward C. Jones, a Carbondale insurance salesman, was getting out of his car at 311 E. Chestnut St. at 10:18 a.m. when a man walked up behind him and said, "Sit still, don't move and give me your wallet."

Jones gave the man his wallet. Then the robber said, "Now don't move," and fled the scene, police said.

Jones was able to see only the back of the robber, who was a black male, police said. Jones found his wallet, which had contained $300, emptied of the money beside the car.

Police said they have no suspects.

U.S. opposes West Bank decision, new doubts arise in Mideast treaty

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration protested Israel's decision to expand its West Bank settlements Thursday as new doubts arose about the possibility of concluding a peace treaty between Egypt and Israel.

President Carter sent a personal cable to Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin to convey the U.S. view of the settlements decision, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said.

The American view, expressed publicly in a statement by Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance, was that the expansion of the settlements was "deeply disturbing."

The Israeli Cabinet voted Wednesday to spend the equivalent of about $15 million to build a reservoir and new housing in existing Israeli settlements on the West Bank.

Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan defended the decision as consistent with Israeli policy and within Israel's rights. Dayan said Israel agreed at the Camp David summit only to refrain from establishing new West Bank settlements during the current period of negotiations with Egypt.

State Department officials, speaking privately, said they were unsure whether Israel actually intended to put substantial numbers of new settlers on the West Bank, or whether the decision was a politically symbolic move to allay the opposition of conservative members of Begin's Likud coalition. These persons have objected to some aspects of the draft treaty that would end a 30-year long state of war between Egypt and Israel.

Whatever the case, the U.S. officials indicated they were dismayed by the timing of the Israeli Cabinet's decision. It came as peace talks between Israel and Egypt were due to resume here, and as interest of the Arab world prepared to consider its response to the Camp David accords at a meeting in Baghdad.

Somalia army officers executed for treason

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Thousands of Somalis watched as a firing squad executed 17 army officers Thursday for their part in the unsuccessful attempt last spring to overthrow President Mohammed Siad Barre, Mogadishu radio reported.

"The executions were carried out by a firing squad formed by soldiers of the armed forces and were witnessed by thousands of people from all areas of Mogadishu," the broadcast said.

The National Security Court convicted the 17 on Sept. 12 for "offenses against the unity, independence and sovereignty of the state," the radio said.

The government has blamed "new imperialists hostile to Somalia."

Monthly water costs have Percy steaming

WASHINGTON (AP) — Millionaire Sen. Charles H. Percy, complaining about "outrageously high" water bills charged to his Washington home, apparently has joined the ranks of Americans upset with government.

In a letter to Mayor Walter E. Washington, the Illinois Republican said his water and sewer bills exceeded

2,000 in one recent 12-month period — much higher than bills sent to other residents in the exclusive Georgetown neighborhood where he lives.

Percy also protested against the failure of city officials to correct what he contends are errors in the bills.

Anderson adopts plan of unusual fund-raising

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., who is exploring the possibility of running for the GOP presidential nomination in 1980, has adopted an unusual fund-raising plan.

Anderson is asking supporters to send him campaign contributions in the form of checks that are post-dated to Jan. 1. The move allows the House Republican Conference chairman to raise political funds now for a later presidential drive.

Campaign contributions raised now for a 1980 White House drive do not qualify for federal matching money, but those obtained in 1979 do. Anderson is hoping that checks cashable next year will be ruled "matchable," even though they were written this year.

The move also enables Anderson, who has been crisscrossing America in search of backing for a White House run, to keep from tipping his hand to a host of would-be GOP rivals. Thus far, he has not been required to file a report of the contributions with the Federal Election Commission.

One killed, four injured in Air force jet crash

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — One person was killed and at least one other injured Thursday when an Air Force jet fighter crashed, just missing a junior high school, at the edge of the downtown University of Arizona campus.

Police said the dead person was riding in a car that was hit by the plane and at least one other person from that car was severely burned.

Police said the pilot, Air Force Capt. Frederick Ashler, bailed out of the A-7D Corsair as it passed over the university and parachuted to safety. He suffered minor injuries.

"The plane went down right on the street between the football practice field and the school," said Tom Duddleston of the University of Arizona.

S-Senate claims executive fund abuse

By Chady Michaelson
Staff Writer

Calling the executive branch of Student Government unresponsive to the requests of the Student Senate, West Side Senator Patrick Heneghan introduced a mandate at Wednesday's meeting which he said would "eliminate questionable use of funds by the executive branch."

"For the past several weeks now, we have asked that a morning secretary be hired (in the Student Government office). The 1978 Fee Allocations Board specifically allocated money for one morning secretary and one afternoon secretary; instead, we have two afternoon secretaries. This is not proper use of the line item budget," Heneghan said.

The Fee Allocation Board proposes allocations of the Student Activity Fee and that proposal is approved by the SIU Board of Trustees. Heneghan contends in the mandate that the Fee Allocation report is law and "not merely suggestions."

The mandate, which was passed by a voice vote, requires the executive branch to "strictly adhere to their budget as reflected in the Fee Allocation Report."

West Side Senator Bob Saal said, "By passing this mandate, we are reiterating the need for the executive branch to follow some rules. We hope to eliminate the past confusion over what constitutes proper expenditure of student fees."

Earlier in the semester, the Student Senate questioned Student President Garrick-Clinton Matthew's contingency fund expenditures for food and travel.

According to Nancy Hunter Harris, director of student activities, the expenditure from a contingency fund for travel is permitted, but use of student activity fees for food is not.

"Unless it would benefit a campus-wide activity, the expenditure of student activity fees for food or beverage is specifically prohibited," Harris said.

The senate also heard a report from Student Trustee Kevin Wright.

Wright said he has received responses from Gov. James Thompson and Rep. Vincent Birchler regarding his request for full voting rights for student members University governing boards.

"Both men have acknowledged my request. Birchler expressed support for the idea and a representative of Thompson said his office is investigating the proposal. I am optimistic that they will follow up on this," Wright said.

When questioned by the senate regarding his vote on the remodeling of the Old Main Restaurant in the Student Center, Wright said he voted in favor of the proposal.

"Prior to my vote on this issue, I sought input from both Student President Matthews and Graduate Student Council President Ricardo Caballero. In both cases, I received no reply," Wright said.

"I have been assured by Student Center Director John Corker that if there is not enough money for both projects, the Old Main remodeling would be scrapped."

Check shows Bakalis wrong on number of welfare cheats

By Bill Densmore
Associated Press Writer

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Democratic gubernatorial candidate Michael J. Bakalis has contradicted himself as well as federal officials with estimates that as many as 212,000 persons are illegally receiving welfare payments in Illinois, an Associated Press check shows.

No one disputes that thousands of persons are illegally receiving public aid payments in Illinois. What is harder to pin down is the exact number of such payments. Figures provided by federal officials place the total at about 82,000 persons.

Fraudulent welfare payments are cited by Bakalis as one of three central issues in his campaign to defeat Republican Gov. James R. Thompson. Bakalis accuses Thompson of allowing welfare fraud to balloon during his two-year administration.

Although Bakalis did not cite dollar figures, federal officials say a whopping $55.6 million was paid during the last six months of 1977 to persons who shouldn't have gotten welfare.

That's included in total payments of $343.9 million. Of that, another $25.8 million was overpaid to recipients eligible for some welfare.

Here is what Bakalis said on Oct. 12 during a televised debate with Thompson:

"Right now, 212,000 people are getting welfare checks that are not entitled to get them. They are lying and cheating and committing fraud to get welfare checks.

"If you're satisfied with 212,000 people illegally being on welfare, vote for Mr. Thompson," Bakalis added during his opening debate statement.

Recently, Bakalis' campaign began running radio advertisements that also deal with the welfare issue. One such spot has him saying:

"We need a shakeup of our state welfare system, which now has one of the worst records in the country for wasting your tax dollars. Do you know that there are 115,000 people on welfare in Illinois who shouldn't be? One hundred and fifteen thousand and nobody's caught them. I think that's pathetic."

According to Denise C. Blackburn, a spokesman for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which compiles welfare figures from states, these are the latest figures available on illegal welfare payments:

From July through December of 1977, Illinois welfare officials handled 214,100 cases where they provided aid to families with dependent children, commonly known as AFDC. An average case involved 3.3 persons.

Of the total, federal officials say there were 24,900 cases where the full amount should not have been paid. A total of 39,500 cases involved partial overpayments. And another 3,900 cases actually involved underpayments.

Bakalis' statements are incomplete, says Ms. Blackburn, because they imply that welfare recipients themselves seek overpayments or illegal payments.

GSC ok's funding of guest lecturers

By Pamela Reilly
Staff Writer

Illinois Supreme Court Justice Joseph Goldenbergh and John Norton, a personal injury lawyer, are among a series of lecturers the Graduate Student Council agreed to fund at its meeting Wednesday night.

The GSC voted 19 to 14 to fund $750 for the guest lecture series, which will be sponsored by the Student Bar Association (SBA).

The series will also include a panel of four young attorneys speaking on job opportunities and Rex Carr, chairman of the committee selected to draft the New Rules of Evidence, which are now being reviewed.

Gary Brown, graduate student representative from the History Department, said he opposed fully funding the project because it was open to the public and the SBA could seek part of the money from other sources.

The GSC also voted to fund $175 to the Black Open Laboratory Theatre for a one-night production which will include an ethnic dinner, fashion competition, a talent show and a dramatic production.

Ricardo Caballero-Aquino, GSC president, said the GSC now has $7,000 left from the $13,000 budget for this fiscal year.

Caballero-Aquino said there is a move, with which he agrees, on the part of concerned GSC members to earmark $4,000 to $5,000 for the spring semester, because major academic activities in a number of graduate disciplines take place in the spring.

After a presentation on campus bicycle paths by Renee Skrzyphak, chairperson of the bicycle paths committee, the GSC voted and endorsed the idea that the University needs cycle paths.

Israeli move raises new treaty doubts

difficult for us," said one official, declining to be identified. He predicted the decision would adversely affect the possibility of Jordan and the West Bank Arabs joining the peace talks called for by the Camp David accords.

The first task facing the State Department was to hold the Egyptian-Israeli talks together. Reports from Cairo indicated that Egypt was considering recalling its delegation.

Dr. Usama Al-Baz, the legal expert in the Egyptian delegation, said the Israeli Cabinet move was "a very unfavorable, negative development." He said the Egyptian delegation was awaiting instructions from Cairo.

Al-Baz would not predict that the peace talks, which were on the verge of success five days ago, would conclude with a treaty. "That remains to be seen," he said.

The Israeli delegation, headed by Dayan, was flying back to Washington Thursday, as the talks were scheduled to resume Friday.

State Department spokesman George Sherman said, "We'll just have to wait and see," when asked whether the Friday meeting among the Americans, Egyptians and Israelis will take place.

Before he left Israel, Dayan acknowledged to reporters that the Israeli decision would make the talks more difficult. He also indicated that the reservations expressed by each government were in direct conflict.

"The same things the government of Israel does not desire, the government of Egypt is trying to strengthen, and vice versa," he said.

The settlements issue has been an irritant to U.S.-Israeli relations for several years. The official American position is at the settlements are illegal, since international law prohibits settlements in occupied territory.

At Camp David, Carter and Begin reached an oral agreement on a freeze on new settlements on the West Bank. But after the meeting, the two leaders disagreed about how long the ban would last.

Begin said he had promised to freeze new settlements only for a few months, while Egypt and Israel negotiated.

Carbondale youth arrested, awaiting felony arraignment

Carbondale police arrested a Carbondale youth Wednesday in connection with the investigation of a burglary and forgery earlier this month.

Charles Garrett, 17, of Carbondale, was arrested by police on two county felony warrants. Police arrested Garrett at his home at 2:30 p.m., but Garrett attempted to escape from police. Police chased Garrett and finally caught him behind Davie's AG food store, 201 N. Washington.

He was processed and transferred to Jackson County Jail, where he will wait for a bond hearing, police said.

The warrants stem from an attempted forgery of stolen checks at T.J.'s Liquors, 1224 W. Main, on Oct. 3. According to police, suspects attempted to cash a stolen check at the store at 10:28 p.m. The resulting investigation led to the arrest of Claude Williams of Carbondale on the forgery. Police said at the time that they had other suspects in the case.

During the investigation, police discovered on Oct. 4 that the home of Doris and Eugene Jackson, 407 E. Birch, had been ransacked. Among the items taken were the blank checks that had been used in the forgery the evening earlier, police said. The Jacksons had moved to Chicago and their house was for sale at the time of the burglary, police said.

Motives of liquor dealers scrutinized

Recent criticism of the Carbondale Liquor Dealers Association for its involvement in the cancellation of the Student Advertising Association's beer bust planned for a couple of weeks ago has generated quite a degree of ill-feeling between the liquor establishments in town and the student population in general.

Briefly, the situation involved a representative from the Carbondale Liquor Dealers Association calling the State Police and informing them that the SIU Student Advertising Association was planning to sell beer at Giant City without a liquor license. The State Police, not the liquor dealers, then called the SAA and informed them that they would be making arrests at the kegger. As a result the SAA cancelled its picnic and subsequently lost money in preparing for an event that never occurred.

The circumstances surrounding the entire situation have not been all that clear, thus leaving the motives of the liquor dealers association in a shrouded light. Although it was never actually stated, some may have read the liquor dealers association action as one intended to discourage any kind of keg parties at all.

If such was indeed the intended position of the 35 member association, then the liquor dealers would have to be against your friendly little kegger where neighbors get together and pitch in for the price of the brew. The association, however, does not consist of such ogres.

Instead, its action was intended as a warning or threat to "wildcat" keggers—those that are sponsored by someone, possibly from out of town, who has no liquor license and stages the event strictly as a one shot money making venture. An example of one such "wildcat" kegger was one held this past summer on

New Era Road west of Carbondale.

The summer kegger was rumored to have been quite large, both in attendance and the amount of beer sold. It is understandable that the liquor dealers in Carbondale would object to this situation, especially if the sponsors of the event are themselves liquor dealers from another town, as has been suggested.

Nonetheless, the fact still remains that the action on the part of the Carbondale Liquor Dealers Association (to which 22 retail liquor dealers still do not belong) was not such a good idea. To have alienated a segment of its clientele with an action as thoughtless as the one against the SAA is reprehensible.

The aim of the liquor dealers association should be to further better relations between it and the Carbondale and SIU community. Thus far that type of action has not been apparent. However, a change for a more positive direction of action would be applauded and appreciated.

Vasectomies are reasonable abortion alternatives

By Michael Stewart
Student Writer

The issue of abortion in the United States still remains one of the most controversial subjects of the seventies. Even though the Supreme Court ruling in 1973 allowed women to legally obtain abortions, several groups within the country are determined to overturn that ruling, and any others which condone abortion. One such group, The National Committee for a Human Life Amendment, has raised over $900,000 to fight abortions. This group, composed mainly of Catholics, also wields formidable power in other ways besides raising money. Lobbying, writing letters, holding rallies and staging marches are just some of the ways they make themselves heard. Groups such as these, in addition to the varied viewpoints of other groups, such as the American Medical Association, have added to the confusion surrounding the legal and medical implications of abortion. It is therefore safe to assume that this is not a closed issue, and efforts will continue by both sides.

By viewing abortion in a fundamental sense, its purpose appears to be one of birth control. It is the least desirable method of ensuring birth control, and unfortunately is the most effective. Other types of birth control developed and improved in recent years offer some very effective means of preventing pregnancy, but are coming under increasing attack as to their possible side effects. This fact raises the point that more research must be done to protect women from these possible side effects, and new answers to the issue must be raised.

One alternative that is becoming more feasible is to better medical techniques is vasectomies for men. Vasectomies are possibly the best remedy for abortions yet devised. It is a simple operation that is proving more successful in the fact that doctors can reverse the procedure more often than in the past.

The success rate for reversing vasectomies in recent years allows men to seriously examine the value of such a procedure. It is perhaps the best current argument in opposing the use of abortions. This does not mean that abortion should not be legal, for that is a hopeless point to argue. It means that the necessity for abortions could be drastically reduced, thus solving the problem by eliminating it. If vasectomies, as well as other methods of birth control were universally accepted and implemented, the need for the least desired method of birth control, abortion, would be limited to emergency use and in cases where sexual crimes were involved. And although it may well be a woman's right to control her own body, a man could substantially ease the burden by considering a vasectomy. After all, men do have some say in the issue, particularly when family planning is the issue.

The answers to abortion are not easy to untangle, as they include moral, religious, and ethical considerations. But two points remain clear about them. The first: Few women enjoy the idea of having an abortion, whether they condone it or not. And the second: It is the "last resort" method of birth control, one that solves the problem after it has arisen rather than preventing it. Looking at abortion in this way logically dictates that preventing the need for abortion is the easiest way to avoid a volatile issue and, if you are a woman, an agonizing decision that may carry with you for years to come.

Men must have a legitimate say in the final outcome of the issue itself, even though they would not carry the burden of the final decision. Though depending on the individual situation, men can also be greatly affected by the decision to have or not to have an abortion. It is apparent that men could help solve the dilemma, and allow women to retain control over their bodies at the same time. This man does not like the idea of abortion in any other sense than that constituting an emergency, but also recognizes the rights of women. So if a medically sound birth control method for men is what it takes to overcome the issue, I would be willing to sacrifice some male ego in order to avoid one of America's least favorite subjects.

Politics is no monkey business for Harvard gorilla

By Arthur Hoppe

The Harvard-educated gorilla who is running for Governor of California unveiled his platform last week. It is located about 20 feet up in an old elm tree just north of the State Capitol.

"If elected, I will sleep in it without so much as a mattress between me and the bare boards," the innovative trailblazer told a crowd of well-wishers present for the ceremonies.

"This will demonstrate that I am more dedicated to thrift, smallness, discomfort, East Indian mysticism and the New Politics than any other candidate. In all due modesty, I must confess that I look upon myself as one of the finest examples of the new breed of politicians."

As a member of the new breed, the straight-shooting crowd-pleaser said he had given "a great deal of thought to each issue in this campaign" before nailing a plank in his platform.

"Take crime," he said, a deep frown of sincerity creasing his broad brow. "After hours of agonizing over this complex problem, I have decided I have no choice but to be against it."

The powerfully-built former 'backer for the Des Moines Cowhawks said that he, personally, had run into a mugger last month in a dark alley off Sepulveda Boulevard in Los Angeles.

"In keeping with my policy of not coddling criminals," said the stout-hearted diamond-in-the-rough, "I bopped him on the head. Furthermore, when I am elected Governor, I promise to bop every criminal I catch on the head, even those wearing white collars."

On the other major issues, the tough-talking contender took equally forthright stands. "I am against unnecessary waste of the taxpayers' money," he said, "and the unnecessary wasters might as well know it. Necessary waste may be necessary, but unnecessary waste is, let the chips fall where they may, not."

The gentle-natured humanitarian also came out in favor of "better treatment for our senior citizens—except those who insist on trying to board outbound buses in their walkers during peak hours."

At the same time, he expressed his hopes for "a better tomorrow" for our children.

"I hope it will be mostly sunny," the starry-eyed dreamer explained, "with light southerly winds and temperatures in the mid-sixties."

On economic issues, the far-sighted problem-solver said that, all things considered, he strongly favored deflation. "I will not rest," the broad-shouldered battler vowed, "until bread once again sells for 12 cents a loaf, milk for eight cents a quart and watermelon for a penny a pound—as they did during The Great Depression."

On the positive side, the trailblazing innovator promised to create thousands of new jobs. "Actually, I've already created one," he said with pardonable pride. "It's a Bulgarian won-ton stuffer. I am sure that one of our many fine citizens of Bulgarian descent would love to have a job like that."

The unorthodox thinker said he would trim not only the fat out of the budget, but its appendix as well. He would not, however, use a meat axe, he said, as very few appendectomies performed with meat axes had proved successful.

In addition, he said, he would not only work for a stronger dollar, but more of them as he had found that one of the major causes of poverty in America was a shortage of dollars among the poor.

In conclusion, the fearless challenger fearlessly challenged his opponents to face-to-face television debates—"because I want to show the public that there is more to one of our new breed of politicians," said the lovable ape, "than just another pretty face."

"Remember, if you want a governor who's really tough on crime," he said, pounding the major plank in his platform for emphasis, "vote for a gorilla."

Playboy girl's downfall was love for attention

By Bob Greene

It was five years ago this autumn. A Playboy bunny was found dead. Her name was Adrienne Pollack. The medical examiner ruled that the cause of death was a drug overdose.

Adrienne Pollack was 23. It is not particularly uncommon, in the 1970s, for young women from good families to die of drug overdoses; methaqualone (or Quaaludes), the drug found in Adrienne Pollack's body, has been a drug of choice among young people for several years now. More than usual attention was paid to her story, though, because of who she was. The Playboy name is magic to the public: Adrienne Pollack, because she was a bunny, made the papers.

There was a flurry of stories, and then nothing. Whatever talk there was about Adrienne Pollack disappeared when Bobbie Arnstein, personal secretary to Playboy editor and publisher Hugh M. Hefner, was found dead of a drug overdose in Chicago's Maryland Hotel. The Arnstein case was more sensational than the Pollack case; with Bobbie Arnstein dead, the focus of public attention was shifted.

Now, five years later, Adrienne Pollack's story is over, except in the minds of her family. They still grieve, lighting a candle in front of her high school graduation photograph every night, and they wonder what happened.

What happened is that Adrienne Pollack was a little girl who grew up part of a Polish-American family in the Chicago suburb of Niles, and one day realized that she had become a beautiful woman.

"She loved attention," recalls her mother, Mrs. Gertrude Pollack. "She loved people to look at her."

She was modeling leather jackets at an Evel Knievel motorcycle show at the International Amphitheatre when a man told her she should be a Playboy bunny. She followed up on it. She was offered the job.

"She came home and said, 'Mom, do you believe it. I have a good enough figure to work for Playboy,'" Mrs. Pollack remembers. "I asked her what she meant. She said she was going to be a bunny. I'm naive. I didn't know what a bunny was. She told me that it was very exciting, that she would get to meet important people. I was disappointed, but I didn't tell her not to do it. I was brought up in a very strict family, and I didn't want to treat her the way I was treated as a young girl."

At the age of 21, Adrienne moved into the Playboy Mansion on North State Parkway.

"She used to tell us about how beautiful the Mansion was," Mrs. Pollack says. "I asked her if there was any chance that we could visit her there, and she said no. Mr. Hefner didn't like the families of the bunnies to come around."

She lived in the Mansion for a year and a half. When she moved out, it was to an apartment at 747 N. Wabash. That is where they found her body.

To her family, the story lives as it if it happened an hour ago. Her mother refers to Adrienne as "our angel."

The mother talks calmly about the facts of her daughter's life. Yes, Adrienne was living in the Mansion as a bunny at 21. Yes, the boyfriend she lived with on Wabash was a heroin addict. Yes, the family had found a letter from another bunny in London, asking Adrienne to send some "ludes" (Quaaludes) to England.

"But none of this had to happen to her," Mrs. Pollack says. "In the years since her death, I see about Playboy on TV, the girls around the pool, and I think to myself, was Adrienne like this? Entertaining the men in every whichway?"

In the mother's mind, there were plots to kill Adrienne. She catalogs a list of the people her daughter knew as a bunny, trying to come up with a logical reason for her daughter's death. The family members are the only persons familiar with the case who believe in the murder theory; it is more comforting for them to think of this, somehow, than to consider that Adrienne was just another young woman who lived a little too fast, and let it get away with her.

Curiously, the Pollack family holds onto the Playboy connection. They carry a small photograph of her in her bunny costume, and take it to neighborhood art fairs during the summer, asking artists to paint a portrait of Adrienne as a bunny. The price is always too high.

John Pollack, the father, works as a stockroom clerk. When Adrienne was young she sensed that her father had always wanted a son, and she used to sign greeting cards to him "Your son, Adrienne."

Every morning before work, he goes to the cemetery to visit Adrienne's grave. He trims the grass around the grave and polishes the headstone.

There is no more Playboy Mansion in Chicago. It has been shut down, closed, its owner gone to California. It is a ghost house to the Pollacks, who feel that they lost their daughter to it. It obsesses them still. They want to get that picture painted.

Support voiced for revolutionary Zambian comrades

The People's Republic of Zambia and the gallant fighters of oppression of Zimbabwe were victims two weeks ago of another odious aggression perpetrated by the armed forces of the racist Rhodesian regime.

Using means of destruction, both aerial and terrestrial, supplied by imperialist powers, the Rhodesian soldiers took destruction to the locality of Zambia causing the death of an estimated 1,500 people. This last aggression was directed, principally, against centers where the Zimbabwean freedom fighters are reported to have been located.

In carrying out this impudent operation of fear and destruction, at the moment when the illegal occupation of Zimbabwe has been unequivocally condemned, passing over the silence of the maneuvers of the so called Anglo-American peace plan, the racist regime of Smith wanted to demonstrate not being interested in any peaceful resolution. On the contrary, it intends to maintain its illegal occupation and reinforce preparations for aggressions to Mozambique, Zambia and indeed the oppressed and suffering masses of Zimbabwe.

I once more denounce vehemently the odious and irresponsible attitude of the racist regime of Smith in violating the sovereignty of Zambia and in continuing to terrorize and oppress the peoples of Zimbabwe.

We Africans will not stop to blame the imperialist powers that arm and equip racist Rhodesian soldiers of the consequences that could happen from the repetition of such aggressive actions.

As an African I reaffirm my unconditional support to all the Zambian people and to the Zimbabwean comrades in our legitimate struggle for freedom and independence. On the African people's side and of the forces of defense and security in independent Africa there is need of an effort of vigilance.

Indeed we have lost those comrades who were once more victims of the barbaric action of the criminal forces of the racist regime of Rhodesia but their revolutionary spirit lives on. Aluta!

Student groups thanked for United Way gifts

The 1978 Student United Way Campaign was a huge success. This year for the first time we achieved our goal of $1,000, exceeded it by $100, and raised more money for the Carbondale United Way agencies than ever before. The amount collected from SIU students this year, $1,100.95, is an increase over all past campaigns by $609.

This money will be added to the overall Carbondale United Way contributions from faculty staff here at SIU. Eighteen different agencies like Aeon, Synergy, Youth Service Bureau, and Hill House will be allocated funds.

Appreciation is extended to Veneqoni Distributors in Murphysboro for a pool table donation and other prizes. This year's residence hall contest was won by Stevenson Arms, who collected $297.15 from a walkathon followed by a great second, Abbott Hall. The stakes also goes to Pepsi Cola of Marion, Stroh's Beer Distributors, Centralia, McDonalds and all the Illinois Street merchants who contributed prizes.

The following campus groups receive special recognition: Student Center Administrative staff, Abbott Hall, Alpha Phi Omega, Phi Sigma Epsilon, Allen I, Baldwin Hall, Sigma Kappa Pledge Class, the Rec Center staff and faculty and students inconvenienced by the Faner Rope Climb, Wednesday, Oct. 4.

Thanks to you it works for the United Way.

Critics fail to draw line between review and criticism

I was always under the impression that there was distinct difference between the "reviewer" and the "critic." As staff members for a college paper, I doubt that either Mr. McCarty or Mr. Erickson hardly have the wealth of knowledge or experience to critique albums in the tone they used to comment on the latest Styx effort, "Pieces of Eight."

Though a Styx fan, I am willing to grant these gentlemen that the vocals on the new album don't match those of "The Grand Illusion" (Styx's previous album). Mr. McCarty could also have a point when noting that the lyrics aren't of the same caliber as those of Styx's previous songs.

Yet, I fail to give either gentlemen credit for writing a good, objective review. McCarty dwells on the status of "Blood and Thunder," and insists on comparing the band's work to that of other artists (an opinion he never clarifies). Perhaps he should compare this Styx to previous Styx, instead of bands they most likely never intended to imitate.

Mr. Erickson also seems content to base his review on a number of cynical comments regarding his personal feelings about the band in general. He lengthens his article by adding a few lines of criticism for Dennis DeYoung's keyboards, and calls this his "review" of the album.

Gentlemen! Let's draw the line between review and criticism. You can review a band's work without personal, derogatory comments about a band's members. You could even critique without describing a pipe organ piece as "bullshit" and a band's weak effort as drunken.

Maybe "Pieces of Eight" isn't Styx's best effort. But reviews by writers who fail to show professionalism or genuine knowledge of their subject can't be the Daily Egyptian's best effort either.

Smoking here to stay? Maybe, but not tobacco

Is anyone free unless everyone is? Tobacco smokers fail to realize they deprive everyone of our most inalienable right, to breathe the clean air! It doesn't matter how close or what kind, when tobacco is burned, it releases black tar and deadly nicotine into all our environment, killing everyone in degree.

Michael Stewart might be correct in saying smoking is here to stay, but in our new world, it won't be tobacco.

I suggest we adopt the SIU emblem for our new world. Besides Southern Illinois University how about Synergistic Interaction Ultimate, or our new world of Scores of Individually Ultrally when everyone stands up for all our right to clean air. Stop Intimidating Us.

Dixie Diesels truck back home

By Maggie Crowley
Student Writer

The Dixie Diesels will bring their version of country and western swing to Silverball Friday and Saturday this homecoming weekend.

The Diesels originated in Carbondale in 1974 as a country rock group. Brad Davis, the group's lead vocalist and rhythm guitarist and Mike Porter, bass player and vocalist, are the only two original members of the group remaining with the Diesels.

The group credits a lot of early musical influence to Asleep At The Wheel, a group that was doing a lot of the type of music they preferred to the acid-rock of the late sixties.

They became quite popular in the Carbondale area and toured the mid-west for two and a half years. In 1975 they cut a "45" doing two of Davis's original songs, "Juke Box Bogie" and "Diesel Truck," which received air play in Chicago and St. Louis.

But in the fall of 1976 the group decided to migrate to Austin, with the intention of setting up home base in Texas.

However the country rock audience in Austin was thinning out, and rock, blues and jazz were the music of the times. This is fortunate for the Diesel fans of the midwest.

The group is currently composed of Brad Davis, Mike Porter, Chris Klym, drummer, Charlie Rice, fiddler and vocalist—originally from the Gordons, a bluegrass group, and Bob Anthony, lead guitarist, peddle steel player and singer who came from the group Peas' Walkin'.

Davis, "Mr. Diesel," writes much of the group's material. Approximately 25 percent of the band's repertoire is original.

Their song list is divided into five categories. The Texas swing division includes "Take Me Back To Texas" and "San Antonio Rose." There are fiddle tunes such as "Old Joe Clark." Shuffles are songs of a moderate speed with a walking beat. And examples of this is a Davis song, "My Car Has A Mind Of It's Own."

The rockabilly section of the songlist includes many Elvis numbers like "Jailhouse Rock" and "Haunted House." Finally there are the Cajun ditties such as "Jambolaya" and a Mike Porter original "Bayou Boogie."

The Diesels future includes a tour of Colorado and the Southwest. Thanksgiving, break will find them in Chicago at Minstrel's Alley and the Clearwater Saloon.

This is real 'Truckin' Music and the place is always packed when the Diesels come back home.

ULTIMATE ROOTS

FALMOUTH, Maine (AP)—After 41 years in the plumbing business, Richard Waltz figures he's finally found the ultimate of roots.

"I've never seen anything quite like it," he comments about a 32-foot-long, 100-pound mass of tiny, almost hair-like interwoven root fibers pulled from a clogged drainage pipe.

Even after the roots were out, the drainage pipe remained clogged, and Waltz and his men kept probing. They found another 20-foot mass of fibers.

The roots apparently belong to a willow tree.

"Roots have almost an intelligence for locating pipes," Waltz explained.

Speech department head to resign

By David McClain
Student Writer

John P. Moncur, chairman of the Speech Pathology and Audiology Department, is resigning the position effective Aug. 15, 1979. Moncur said he felt a need to return to full time teaching and research.

Moncur has been chairman of the department since 1972, when he came to SIU from Michigan State University. After six years of administration and fiscal duties, Moncur said he wants to direct his energy and talents to the classroom.

"My feeling is to increase time for research and teaching," Moncur explained. "Understand, many times when a chairman of a department resigns, there is talk of him being dissatisfied or some other boohaha."

"But that is not the case in my situation. In fact, the smoothest waters of this position have occurred for me in the last year and a half," Moncur said.

Fellowship awarded

A speech pathologist from SIU will do research next spring at the University of Utrecht, Holland, under the terms of a Fulbright-Hays fellowship.

Gene J. Bruten, professor in the Department of Speech Pathology and Audiology, will spend spring semester at the University of Utrecht's Academisch Ziekenhuis (medical school). He will conduct research in his specialty—treatment of stuttering and diagnosis of persons who suffer from the disorder.

Bruten pursued similar studies at Utrecht in 1971-72 under a Fulbright grant.

Bruten's wife, Sheila, an instructor in the Center for English as a Second Language-Linguistics program, will accompany her husband.

The duties and responsibilities of a university department chairman have changed and become more involved over the years, according to Moncur, who has held various administrative positions since receiving his doctorate at UCLA in 1949.

Starting in about 1965, programs were reviewed with more scrutiny in universities, Moncur said. Restrictions in fiscal matters and other areas created more concern for universities, he said.

Schools then placed more responsibility for the success of programs on department chairmen and deans, Moncur explained.

"I've been very satisfied with my job here," Moncur said, adding that he has not minded the pressure and duties of his position.

Moncur has been in the speech field since the 1940s.

Expert: Teenage pregnancies rising

By Melodie Redlearn
Staff Writer

One out of every 10 American females below the age of 18 became pregnant last year, according to Anna Carol Fultz, professor in vocational educator studies.

The problems and responsibilities of the teen-age mother were discussed at a workshop dealing with this reality.

"Although adolescent pregnancies are nothing new, more and more girls are keeping their babies," said Victoria Nichols, professor in the School of Medicine. "Pregnancy is no longer a confinement."

According to Nichols, 36 percent of all girls in the United States have had some sexual experience before the age of 19. She said 10 percent have had the experience by the age of 15. "Although the birth rate among older teen-agers is declining due to contraceptive education, births among young teens are rising, because the girls are not being taught these things."

"We have to realize that any girl who has started her menstrual cycle, regardless of age, is capable of getting pregnant," she said. "Because these girls are still growing themselves, bearing children can be very dangerous."

Nichols said that pregnancy at a young age can be harmful socially, economically, emotionally and physically. "Although the ideal age for having children is between 20 and 24, when the body is matured, strong and healthy, it is a fact that young girls have children of their own, and that we should recognize this and try to provide the best care we can to make it the best pregnancy possible for her."

Nichols said the medical problems of the adolescent mother can be numerous but the main problems are poor nutrition, low birth weight of the child and a high risk of death for the mother and the infant.

"Teen-agers are not accustomed to eating right and often continue the same eating habits as before they were pregnant. But they must realize they are providing for a new life inside of them."

There is a greater chance of infants born to adolescent mothers being mentally retarded or having learning disabilities since these infants often weigh less than infants born to older women, Nichols said.

"This in turn results in increased costs of caring for the child," she said. Complete or partial lack of prenatal care is a very common occurrence among girls 15-years-old and below.

Even though contraceptives can be legally obtained by girls 12 years and older in Illinois, Nichols cited various reasons young girls give for not using them. She said many girls believe that because they are so young, they cannot get pregnant.

Others have said that they do not mind getting pregnant, that contraceptives interfere with pleasure and that they have a moral or medical objection to them.

Nichols advised those who are involved with pregnant adolescents to be as supportive as possible. "These anxieties can often lead to major medical problems that wouldn't be there if she were more relaxed and had less to worry about." She said that marriage in many cases may not be advisable. Nichols also stressed continued support after birth.

Concerning pregnancy prevention, Nichols said that schools should initiate a more realistic sex education program in which the responsibilities of a sexual relationship are fully exposed, and in which girls are taught how to "say no." She said there should also be a program for parents of teens.

During the workshop's luncheon, Muriel Caldwell, consultant for maternal and child health for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, spoke of the critical role of nutrition in adolescent parenting.

She said the total diet must be considered to make sure the mother gets a balance of proteins, vitamins and minerals. She said the recommended intake for the pregnant teen is approximately 2,500 calories.

PRESIDENTIAL FLAG

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Police Chief Richard LaMunyon left his office at quitting time and solved the "Curious Case of the Pilfered Presidential Flag."

The flag was stolen during President Carter's visit to Wichita on Saturday and was discovered in a brown shopping bag outside the chief's waiting room Monday. The $2,500 pennant was slightly crumpled, but otherwise undamaged.

Authorities believe the flag, one of only eight in the country and emblazoned with the presidential seal, was taken from a room at Century II when Secret Service agents left to guard the president.

"It was probably the result of a dare, and when they realized what they had done, they returned it," the police chief said.

Program plans PBS 'samples'

By Steve E. Grant
Student Writer

A WSU-TV production, "Black Dimensions," is presenting a proposal to the Public Broadcasting System which, if approved, would allow the program to be aired on a nationwide basis.

The first of two sample programs must be submitted to the PBS Program Cooperative, the group that decides what programs will be funded, by the end of October, according to Juanita Anderson, producer and director of "Black Dimensions."

"Our program, on a national basis, would express black culture through art, dance and music, as well as the expression of the thoughts and perceptions of black people concerning the world in which we live," Anderson said.

"Black Dimensions" began in 1976 and is in its third season. The program has a 15-member crew, and it aired four times a month.

"We try to design our local programming with the intent of aiding the black community in Carbondale, in making their problems and opinions public, as well as teaching and preparing students to become good black communicators," Anderson said. Anderson, who is from Detroit, earned a bachelor's degree in journalism and radio-television and a master's degree in radio-television and film production at the University of Michigan. She was named adjunct instructor in radio-television at SIU in June 1976.

"Two programs must be submitted before approval of funding will take place," Anderson said. "The first program is a sample production stressing our basic format, while the second is a finished, polished production. We will know if the sample program is approved by the end of November."

The local "Black Dimensions" program includes news, events, a community calendar and public affairs issues. In the weeks to come, the program will feature cultural expressions, special in-depth reports and African people throughout the world.

Topics covered on "Black Dimensions" include "Education and Children," "Architecture in the Black Community" and "The Development of a Means of Transportation."

Airport officials warn protesters of possible crash

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A protest planned by residents near Lambert St. Louis International Airport could cause the crash of a jetline there, airport officials said.

Residents of the West Ramona Park subdivision, about a mile east of Lambert, are planning to fly weather balloons attached to "large, heavy cords" to an altitude of 450 feet above their homes beginning Nov. 3, their attorney said.

Director of Airports Leonard I. Griggs Jr. said 450 feet is about the altitude of the accepted glide path above the subdivision as airplanes are landing from the east at Lambert.

"If a pilot got just a little below on the flight path, this kind of action could be damn serious," Griggs said. "It could force an airplane to crash."

Griggs said the airport will seek a court order forbidding the West Ramona Park residents from flying the balloons.

SIU researcher says marijuana has potential as medical treatment

By University News Service
Pot smokers might claim they knew it all the time, but an SIU expert on medicine plants says marijuana may hold the key to a variety of healing drugs.
But, Norman Doorenbos says, don't look forward to getting high on your doctor's orders. Chances are it will never happen.
Doorenbos is dean of the College of Science. He's also a recognized expert on marijuana and a host of other medicinal plants. For several years in the late 1960s, he cultivated the country's only legal marijuana field to supply his research operations.

Doorenbos agrees with a recent article in the Journal of the American Medical Association that discussed several potential medical uses for marijuana derivatives. But he thinks marijuana will be more useful as a map to further development of synthetic drugs, rather than as a drug itself.

"At the present time, there are synthetic drugs that are superior to all the useful drugs in marijuana," he said. "But beginning with the Fellowships offered

The following fellowships and scholarship opportunities are available. Applications can be obtained from Helen Vergette at Woody Hall, C212 or call 536-7791.

The Ford Foundation invites applications for pre-doctoral and post-doctoral candidates for training to increase their competence in Soviet-East European area studies as well as international security arms control. Application deadline is Jan. 1.

The Dumbarton Oaks Foundation is offering pre-doctoral and post-doctoral fellowships for study to promote research in the history of landscape architecture and the related fields of garden design and garden ornament, and the history of horticulture. Application deadline is Dec. 1.

clues the marijuana plant has provided, chemists may be able to prepare drugs that are better than anything we now use."

He pointed out that most of the medicines now in use originated in plants, and listed a variety of ailments that seem to respond to drugs found in marijuana.

"In marijuana there are drugs that could be useful in treating glaucoma, epilepsy, cancer, asthma and in relieving nausea associated with cancer chemotherapy," he said. He also noted that other compounds in the plant appear to have promise as pain relievers and may be able to suppress the so-called rejection mechanism that complicates organ transplants.

Doorenbos said conventional medication is still more useful for glaucoma than marijuana, although its sufferers are often mentioned as potential beneficiaries of marijuana.

"One of the problems with using marijuana medicinally is that it must be smoked," he said. "And when you smoke marijuana, you get damage to the lungs and some effects on the mind."

SIU alumni organized worldwide

By SIU Alumni Office

Nostalgia and the renewing of old friendships will reign Saturday at Homecoming 1978.

It will mark the 56th year homecoming has been observed at the University.

Historically, the first official homecoming at SIU was celebrated in 1922. Then, the University was called Southern Illinois Normal University.

An election of a spring festival king and queen in 1925 is generally considered the forerunner of the traditional homecoming queen at SIU, according to University News Services files.

Officially, the first homecoming queen was chosen in 1928 when Dorothy Benner Muckelroy, a native of Anna was selected. Muckelroy, of Sun City, Fla., graduated from SIU in 1928.

Sentimentally, homecoming is a time when many SIU alumni return to their alma mater, often after many years.

To them, it is an opportunity to greet old friends, to remember the "good old days," to show their family the University or just to check on the well-being of SIU since they've been gone.

There are alumni in every county in Illinois, every state in the United States and in 89 foreign countries, according to Robert Odaniell, executive director of the Alumni Association.

Illinois has 48,267 SIU alumni, he said.

The second largest state alumni constituency is Missouri with 2,764 ex-Salukis. The top eight states in order of alumni population are California (2,142), Florida (1,211), Indiana (1,192), Texas (1,107), New York (973), Michigan (830), Ohio (788) and Colorado (599).

New Hampshire has the least amount of SIU-C alumni with 30.

Every county in Illinois has SIU alumni. Cook County in Northern Illinois has the largest alumni population with 10,044, followed by Jackson County with 4,622.

Following Jackson County, the top eight Illinois counties are Williamson (2,509), DuPage (2,000), St. Clair (1,819), Madison (1,568), Franklin (1,446), Sangamon (1,292), Jefferson (1,023) and Lake (970).

Internationally, you will find SIU-C alumni in 89 countries. Canada has the most ex-Salukis with 122.

In addition, the following countries have over 20 SIU alumni: Thailand (63), British Crown Colony Hong Kong (58), Taiwan (44), Iran (42), India (39), Japan (33), England (26), Columbia (22) and Nepal (20).

To be of service to alumni who are interested in continued involvement with the University, the Alumni Association has 25 alumni clubs in Illinois, 18 clubs outside Illinois and two foreign clubs (Taiwan and Belgium-Lux).

For alumni who are specifically interested in staying informed about their major area of study, the Alumni Association has eight professionally oriented groups called constituent societies.

The societies are agriculture, business and administration, engineering and technology, home economics, liberal arts, medicine, science and technical careers.

When a person is called an alumnus, that does not necessarily mean that he or she has graduated. According to the Alumni Association's by-laws, alumni are considered to be anyone who has attended SIU for at least one semester. Faculty and Staff are also eligible to join the Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association map indicates the breakdown of members in each state in the United States. Every county in Illinois has representatives in the group, as well as every state in the United States and 89 foreign countries.

UN ambassador to speak at library

By Jill Mitchell
Staff Writer

Donald F. McHenry, deputy ambassador of the United States to the United Nations will present a lecture titled "The United Nation in the Southwest Africa: Achievements and Disappointments" at 7 p.m. Friday in the Morris Library Auditorium.

McHenry was named Ambassador to the United Nations in 1977 and has been involved in many international events including Vice President Walter Mondale's trip to Europe and the five-power talks in South Africa. He is regarded as a specialist on the problem in South Africa.

He has been regarded as a soft-spoken diplomat with a persuasive negotiating style. A former Assistant Secretary of State has described his work as "one of the big successes of the Carter administration."

McHenry will be in Carbondale to receive one of the four 1978 Alumni Achievement Recognition Awards to be presented during the Alumni Association Recognition luncheon Oct. 28.

McHenry received his master's degree in speech and political science from SIU in 1959. Since then, he has served in the Department of State, with the Brookings Institution and with the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace.

The address is sponsored by Student Government Activities Council Lectures committee, the departments of speech and political science.

Demand, prices up for Thanksgiving turkeys

By Louise Cook

Associated Press Writer

You'll have to pay more for your Thanksgiving turkey this year and you may have to hunt harder to find just the bird you want. Demand is up and so are prices.

Retailers contacted in an Associated Press spot check generally said prices will average about 20 cents per pound more than in 1977.

The Department of Agriculture says there was 12 percent less frozen turkey in cold-storage warehouses at the end of September than there was a year earlier. The official word from the USDA is that supplies for the holiday season, when up to 60 percent of all turkeys are sold, will be "less than adequate, not enough for normal needs."

Turkey farmers have been raising more birds than ever, but the increased production was not enough to keep up with the surge in demand that followed sharp rises in the price of red meat.

"When red meats got high, people turned to alternatives. They're eating a lot more turkeys," said a spokesman for Longmont Turkey Processors in Longmont, Colo.

Leo Gulikers, meat manager at Kimberlings, an Oklahoma City grocery chain, said he had ordered his turkeys early and had a sufficient supply, but he warned of higher prices.

Gulikers said he has been paying just over 70 cents a pound for turkey; the Thanksgiving retail price will be about six cents more per pound. Last year, Gulikers said, turkeys were selling at 48 to 63 cents a pound on sale.

Tony Napolitano of Pathmark, an East Coast supermarket chain, also said supplies would be sufficient, but prices would be higher. He said the chain had not set retail markups for the 1978 holiday season yet, but added that the wholesale price is up 12 to 15 percent from last year.

A spokesman for the Minnesota Turkey Growers Association, whose members raise about 24 million birds a year and lead the nation in production, said there would be no across-the-board shortages, but added that certain sizes — particularly the smaller ones — might be hard to find.

"Demand is up considerably," the spokesman said, noting that an increasing amount of turkey is being used for ham and sausage products. Turkey in Minnesota, the spokesman said, has been running about 78 cents a pound, compared to 60 cents a pound last year.

No one is predicting empty shelves at the poultry counter. Most store spokesmen expect enough birds to satisfy customers. They all agreed, however, that the cost would be up and some expressed concern about what would happen at Christmas.

"If there is a shortage now, there will be a shortage at Christmas," said Gulikers. "There is always less of a supply at Christmas anyway."

Saluki netters to play at Belleville

By Gordon Egan-Edwards
Staff Writer

Arkansas and host SIU-Edwardsville have been deemed the favorites in the Belleville Oakhill Invitational tournament this weekend by Coach Dick LeFevre.

SIU-E is the defending champion and the title hopes of the Cougars rest on their freshmen playing in the lower singles spots. LeFevre thinks the Sahuks will finish in the middle of the eight-team pack. Other teams scheduled to appear in the tournament are Illinois State, Missouri, Clemson, Colorado and Minnesota.

Although the tournament is single elimination, first-round losers will still advance into consolation play. The tournament is set up so that each team's No. 1 player will face only other No. 1 players, No. 2 players other No. 2 players, and so on. Seeding will determine each player's opponent.

Jeff Lubner, who LeFevre said is playing well, will play No. 1 for the Sahuks. Inconsistent Neville Kennerley and freshman Lito Ampon will play Nos. 2 and 3, respectively.

Jose Lizardo, who is much improved over last season, will play No. 4. Paul Haskin, who recently hasn't been able to practice enough because of midterms, "needs harder work," said LeFevre, "but he's playing better than when he arrived at SIU this fall."

Jerry Garcia, a transfer from Navarro (Texas) Junior College, defeated Mike Popienko in a challenge match Wednesday which will allow him to play No. 6 singles this weekend.

The No. 1 doubles team of Lubner and Kennerley hopes to play well enough at Belleville to qualify for the National Indoor Doubles Championship scheduled for Dec. 1-3 in Wichita, Kan.

LeFevre said the Sahuks are not playing consistently and are still making too many errors. "It's very difficult to see a dramatic change in a player," he said. "After a player gains confidence he gets more confidence, and improves that much more. It simply takes time to gain confidence; until then the player is going to lose."

The Sahuks suffered a blow to their recruiting efforts when Ecuadorians Ricardo and Mario Pazmino, the country's No. 5 and 6 juniors, decided to return to their homeland after they became discouraged with their efforts to learn English at a St. Petersburg, Fla. junior college. The pair were scheduled to come to SIU in the spring.

"This was a forceful implosion to the team, because they were excellent players," LeFevre said. "I had arranged for them to attend a junior college in Florida for a year to allow them to become more familiar with the language, but they didn't even want to stick around for that."

Hart, Little listed doubtful vs. Eagles

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Cardinals quarterback Jim Hart is listed as doubtful as the National Football League team prepared to play the Eagles in Philadelphia Sunday.

Hart, suffering from a shoulder separation, sat out last week's game, when the Cardinals lost 23-10 to the New York Jets.

Kicker Steve Little also is listed as doubtful with a leg injury.

Johnson becomes latest Bull player

CHICAGO (AP)—The struggling Chicago Bulls signed free agent forward Ollie Johnson Wednesday to fill the roster spot of Scott May, who will have surgery on his right knee Friday.

May is expected to miss four weeks of the National Basketball Association season. The former star of Indiana's 1976 NCAA championship team has played in just two of the Bulls' six games.

He tested his sore knee for 12 minutes during Tuesday night's 123-117 loss to the Kansas City Kings that kept the Bulls in the Midwest Division cellar with a 1-5 record.

May's activity was curtailed last season by a bad left knee required surgery.

Terriers to test league's best

Eliminated from the South Seven Conference title chase, the Carbonade Terriers assume the role of "spoilers" against the Benton Rangers Friday night.

The Terriers, 2-5 overall and 2-3 in the conference, dropped from contention following last week's 33-14 drubbing at the hands of Harrisburg.

Benton, 6-1 overall, sits on top of the conference standings with a 4-0 mark. The Rangers have rolled to six consecutive wins following an opening game, one-point loss to Sparta. The Rangers "knocked off" Mt. Vernon 26-12 last week, and travel to Harrisburg next weekend in a game that could decide the conference representative in the state playoffs.

Terrier fans making the trek to Benton Friday night will see a Ranger team that features size and quickness.

"They're big and physical," Terrier boss Jim Lovin pointed out. "Personnelwise, they're the best in the league. However, Harrisburg may be better fundamentally. Benton does make a lot of mistakes."

The Rangers have a potent ground attack, leading the area with a 307 yards-per-game average. Mike Barrett, a 175-pound senior, leads the squad with 774 yards in 134 carries, an average of 5.8 yards per carry. Senior quarterback Ben Sims is the option as well as anyone, according to Lovin, and is among the top ten in area scoring.

While Benton's running game is tops in the area, their passing game has been lacking. The Rangers have totaled only 54 yards passing in their first seven contests.

"Don't let that fool you," Lovin notes. "Sims is a good thrower and has two excellent receivers in Buvi (6-4, 225 pound junior Jim Buvi) and Jones (210 pound senior Dave Jones)."

The Ranger defense also rates near the top in points allowed. Benton's defense has not given up more than two touchdowns in any of their victories this year and have posted two shutouts. Terrier running backs Jim Andrew and Fred Lewis will get a stern challenge this week. The Rangers rate second in defense against the rush, allowing 96 yards per game.

Lovin hopes his squad can "run on the Rangers."

Field hockey title quest to be a 'trip'

By Gerry Bliss
Staff Writer

To take a cue from the old Bob Hope-Bing Crosby road pictures, the SIU women's field hockey team will be trekking the long road to Macomb this Saturday to play its final games of the regular season against Western Illinois and Illinois State. The junior varsity will also be making the trip and will close its season against the same two teams. If ever, as Saturday's games the stickhandlers will embark on another long road, hoping to defend their third straight state title the following weekend at Edwardsville. After the state championship, the Salukis then hope to become the new Midwest regional champions at LaCrosse, Wis.

Both the state and midwest championships are within striking distance for the Salukis. The team sports one of the best records in the state, 15-4-3, and is undefeated against state schools. Two of the losses have come against St. Louis University, the most recent one occurring last Sunday when the Billikins routed SIU 7-1.

However, Coach Julie Illner considers both games important, especially the one against the Westerwinds, which will determine the No. 1 seed in the state tournament. WIU is undefeated and ranks next to SIU as the strongest team in the state. Last year, SIU and Western played to a 1-1 tie, while the Salukis also played to a tie with Illinois State 0-0.

"It will be a real tough game against Western," Illner said. "They are stronger than last year and they have the same kind of team as St. Louis in that they play rough and have experience. ISU shouldn't be too tough since they haven't won too many games this season."

SIU will enter the two games with a slight variation in its 4-3-2-1 offense which has proved very

Riegger's lucky 7 hasn't stopped race 'mind games'

By Brad Bethel
Staff Writer

Chris Riegger is like a lot of freshmen running cross country. If the races were a mile long, he'd be doing great. But because five miles makes a meet, Riegger has been struggling.

"I'm not real happy with how I've run the last three meets," he said. "I stay near the front for the first mile, but then I start thinking that my pace is too fast and I start letting up."

Riegger blames his second-mile mind games to inexperience. He has been running cross country only since his senior year in high school. And he ran at Anna-Jonesboro High School. Cross country in Southern Illinois is not as competitive, Riegger said, as the tough Chicago-area competition that someone like Bill Moran, another Saluki freshman, faced in high school.

And Karsten Schultz, who along with Moran has been running ahead of Riegger all year, was the state high school champion in Maryland. Riegger said that he hasn't run cross country long enough or faced enough tough runners to know how to deal with the mental cruelty a course like Midland Hills can impose on a runner.

Riegger said the Illinois Intercollegiate meet is a good example of what's been happening to him all year. As usual, he said, "I started dropping off. But I figured I was all right because I was still ahead of (Scott) McAllister. I was thinking about who was behind me instead of who was ahead of me. It seems like I always start playing mind games like that."

Staying ahead of McAllister, however, probably means Riegger will be the seventh man on the seven-man team headed for the Missouri Valley Conference meet Nov. 4 in Wichita, Kan. He is happy about that.

WEEPS FOR THE DEAD
DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—Scientists are puzzling over a wooden memorial cross made in 1918 by members of the South African Corps which weeps resin every year on the anniversary of a World War I battle where more than 2,000 South African soldiers died. The cross was made from a length of pine taken from Deville Wood in France, the scene of the battle.

effective the last half the season. Sophomore Mary Gilbert, who has been playing the lone sweeper position, will be moved back to halfback to give the Salukis more stickwork up front. Fullbacks Moe Allmendinger and Barb Morris will then switch off at playing sweeper, depending on which side of the field play is concentrated on.

"Barb and Moe will still give us the deep coverage that we need. Last Saturday, Chris Evon had too much area to cover and we need Mary Gilbert's stickwork up front more," Illner said.

Last Saturday was a good day for SIU in more ways than one. First, the Salukis shut out both SIU-Edwardsville, 6-0, and Indiana State, 7-0, in their final two home games. More importantly, senior forward Helen Meyer tallied her 100th career goal and went on to score five more for the day. But then came last Sunday and the big defeat at the hands of the Billikins. But Illner said the sound defeat should help SIU against the Westerwinds this weekend.

THE OPTIMUM MOMENT.

Mountaineering<sup>1</sup> is a skill of timing as well as technique. The wrong moment, like the wrong method, marks the gap between amateur and aficionado. So the key to successful mountaineering is to choose the occasions wisely and well. When, then, is it appropriate to slowly quaff the smooth, refreshing mountains of Busch Beer?

Celebrations, of course, are both expected and excellent opportunities to test your mountaineering mettle. Indeed, on major holidays it is virtually mandatory to do so. Imagine ushering in the fiscal new year or commemorating Calvin C. Coolidge's birthday or throwing caution to the wind during Take-A-Sorghum-To-Lunch-Week without the benefit of Busch. A disturbing prospect at best.

On the other hand, not every event need be as significant as those outlined above.

Small victories like exams passed, papers completed or classes attended are equally acceptable. Remember the mountaineer's motto: matriculation is celebration.

Interpersonal relationships are also meaningful times. There are few things finer than taking your companion in hand and heading for the mountains, transcending the hohum and hum-drum in favor of a romantic R & R. Naturally, couples who share the pleasures of mountaineering run the risk of being labeled social climbers. But such cheap shots are to be ignored. They are the work of cynics, nay-sayers and chronic malcontents.

Similarly, the ambience of an athletic afternoon (e.g. The Big Game) is another ideal moment. Downing the mountains elevates the morale of the fan and, hence, the team. Therefore, if you care at all about the outcome, it is your duty to mountaineer.

When should one not enjoy the invigoration of the mountains? Here, you'll be happy to learn, the list is much briefer.

Mountaineering is considered declassé with dessert, improper during judicial proceedings and just plain foolish while crop dusting around power lines. Otherwise, as the hot-heads of the sixties used to say, "Seize the time!"

Mountaineering is the science and art of drinking Busch. The term originates due to the snowy, icy peaks sported by the label outside and perpetuated due to the cold, naturally refreshing taste inside (cf. lessons 1, 2 and 3.)

'Playwright' ponders running serial

By Brad Becker
Staff Writer

The plot line looks all right, the director tells the playwright. There isn't much conflict, the characters' actions are a bit predictable, but there's enough drama and disappointment to pull it through if you can come up with a rousing finish. It needs something unpredictable—something that'll make all the experts stand up and take notice.

I know what you mean, the playwright replies. It's good, but it's just too bland. Tell you what. Give me until Saturday and I'll see what I can come up with.

The playwright broods over his material. Let's see, he thinks. We've got a good potential hero. Linda Nelson has overcome the odds. She's never run cross country before this year. Her mom died. And she's still been SIU's best this year. Every time. Running No. 1 all the time has made her character too predictable. It needs some work.

She thinks some more. Hmmm. The state meet is Saturday. Certainly none of the experts expects a freshman to beat Robin Smith, Wendy Van Mierlo, Bev Roland, or Anita Moyer. They've been around and know what these big meets are like. A Nelson victory just might be realistic, though.

The playwright decides the idea will sell, so she writes it into the plot. She pauses to look at her material again. Patty Plymire's been No. 2 all year, which is starting to get boring. I've got to make something different happen in Macomb. How about really making her work to stay No.

2? The plot line so far shows Trish Grandis and Cathy Chiarello improving with every meet, and they just might be able to catch Plymire. If Patty wants to be second for SIU this weekend, she'll have to work to do it.

The playwright scribbles a note to herself: Can't bet on who will finish in front of whom. Will be surprised if things don't change this weekend. Patty may finish second for SIU again, but will have to run a heckuva race. Trish and Cathy will push her.

The playwright looks at her watch. Not much time left. The final draft has to be in Saturday. That should leave just enough time to work on the Linda Snovak and Jean Meehan characters. They've done a lot to create some drama in the plot so far. Meehan's been injured and missed two meets. As the state meet approaches, everyone in the play wonders: Will she be able to run very well? Will she have enough confidence to go all out on her tender limb?

She decides to leave the Meehan character alone. It'll make the plot more unpredictable.

The playwright turns her thoughts to Snovak. Linda's contributed some disappointment to the plot. She's been disappointed in herself even though every other character in the play is confident she can run well. The playwright decides that a 25th-place finish would be reasonable. Such a finish could not be predicted from earlier happenings in the play, so it would thicken the plot and get the playwright closer to her rousing ending.

The characters and all the little subplots they represent are taken care of, she decides. But I can't sell a play on subplots, she thinks. The director won't take it until I fix up the main plot. The playwright sits and ponders her Saturday deadline.

No way, she thinks. I can't have it done by then. She concludes that the only thing to do would be to send some kids to the director and see which one he likes. The most predictable ending would be a Western Illinois victory. That team, led by Bev Roland, won the state meet last year. They finished second in the Midwest region and 10th in the national meet. And their runners will be competing on their home course.

The playwright then considers the Anita Moyer-led Illinois team. They finished second in the state last year, and an Illinois upset Saturday might make for an exciting ending. She scribbles down that ending as another possibility. And then she lets her emotions take over.

An SIU win just might be the rousing finish she is looking for. The only thing is, she knows she has to provide a pretty good rationale to the director for him to accept such an unlikely ending. The finish would have the unpredictability the director wanted, but the audience might not believe it.

It might sell, she thinks, if the plot line had Illinois and Western Illinois lose the race rather than having SIU win it outright. She writes the director a note: Think that if Illinois and Western run each other out, that is, if they worry too much about beating each other, SIU might sneak by. Sincerely, C.B.

Wind aids kicker into record books

WICHITA, Kan. (AP)—Joseph Hans Jürgen Williams, whose mother carried him from East Berlin just before the Berlin Wall was erected, has used the soccer skills he developed growing up in Germany to carve a niche in college football's record books.

The 21-year-old Wichita State University junior equaled an NCAA record last Saturday against Southern Illinois when he kicked a 67-yard field goal with an assist from a strong autumn wind.

A transfer this year from from a Mississippi junior college, Williams has made 9 of 16 field goals and 15 of 16 extra point attempts for the Shockers.

Four seconds remained in Saturday's game when Coach Jim Wright ordered in the kicking unit with the Shockers leading 30-7.

"All the kickoffs Joe kicked went over the goal posts," Wright said, "so that gave us the idea he was pumped up pretty good to try one."

"I knew I hit it pretty good when I kicked it," Williams said. "The wind just took the rest and it went through."

Wright admitted that had he known Williams was at record distance, he would have had the ball placed down a yard back on the Cessna Stadium field so Williams could set the record. The kick tied the mark established last season by Steve Little of Arkansas, now with the St. Louis Cardinals, and Russell Erxleben of Texas.

For Williams, the record and the opportunity to attend college on a football scholarship simply reinforced a decision he made six years ago to leave Germany for the United States.

Williams, a German citizen who has applied for U.S. naturalization, was an infant when his mother fled East Berlin before Communists erected the Berlin Wall.

His father died in 1969 in East Germany, but his mother, now 65, and four brothers and a sister still live in Berlin.

Cernak could play in Northern game

By George Csolak
Sports Editor

John Cernak has had to watch or listen to the Saluki football team play seven football games this season. He was tabbed the No. 1 quarterback by Head Coach Rey Dempsey before the season began. But he suffered a broken leg in a scrimmage just before the season opener, and his future as a 1978 player was uncertain.

Almost nine weeks have passed since the 6-2, 220-pounder suffered a broken fibula, the small bone in his lower right leg. The rehabilitation is almost complete. He has been practicing with the team for the past three weeks and, according to Dempsey, has shown improvement every time out.

Cernak will face an important test Friday. If he is ready to go, he could start against Northern Illinois Saturday. It sounds like a familiar story, but if the Dolton native isn't ready to go, he will be redshirted, Dempsey said Thursday.

"He has the release from the doctor that he can play," Dempsey said. "John has been practicing and he's shown improvement. I'm not sure if he'll be ready, though. I want to make sure in my mind and in his mind that we have assurance he'll be all right."

The Salukis will be trying to bounce back from back-to-back losses to Arkansas State and Wichita State. The Homecoming nonconference dogfight between the Salukis and the Huskies will begin at 2 p.m.

The controversy surrounding the possible redshirting of Cernak has been brewing for quite some time. And Dempsey realizes that the Salukis are out of the running for the Missouri Valley Conference (MVC) championship, but he is looking at the possible finish the Salukis could have with Cernak in the control.

"If you win four games with him and go 8-3, that's a great record," Dempsey explained. "It's not selfishness on our part, it's for the team. And John wants to play."

If Cernak isn't ready, Arthur Williams will get the call. But Dempsey added that Gerald Carr has been improving at practice also. Carr hit tight end Hugh Fletcher with a 36-yard scoring strike last week for the lone SIU score against Wichita State.

Paul Molla (12) kicked a field goal in the Saluki football team practice Thursday at McAndrew Stadium. The team practiced special teams

Northern and Southern have exchanged shutouts for the last two years, each winning on its Homecoming. The Salukis drowned the Huskie, 54-0 in 1976 when Andre Herrera put on his record-shattering rushing performance with 319 yards and six touchdowns. Last year, the Huskies returned the favor, 28-0 when the Salukis took a battered team to DeKalb and suffered their third successive shutout en route to a dismal 3-8 season.

Dempsey said the Saluki players were down after last week's 33-7 MVC loss to Wichita, and they felt bad until Wednesday, when things changed.

"Last week's loss was much harder to take than the loss against Arkansas State," Dempsey said. "But we've had good practice sessions. Wednesday's practice was really a good one. The players didn't feel as bad about the game and they were looking to Northern."

The Huskies are an improved team over last year. Even though their record is just 2-4, they put 49 points on the board against Illinois State and won the game, and came back from a 30-0 halftime deficit to tie the score. And Dempsey is wary of the man who makes the Huskie offense click, tailback Allen Ross.

"Ross was one of the faster freshman backs we played against last year," Dempsey said referring to Ross' 140 yards rushing and two touchdowns against the Salukis last year. "He's got good moves and he's good at cutting back against the grain."

The Saluki coach was also impressed with his great acceleration and speed. Dempsey said he is impressed with Huskie quarterback Pete Kraker and his favorite receiver Dave Petzke.

"Petzke is a great receiver," Dempsey praised. "And their quarterback can throw long or short. The kid can throw long, but he hasn't done it. They are good at the intermediate passing...the short stuff, and their receivers run great cuts.

Dempsey termed the Huskie offensive line as "better than average. It's not as big as the one we faced last week. They like to run the draw play off tackle, though."

On defense, the Huskies are led by linebacker Frank Lewandoski, who as 108 tackles, two interceptions, one fumble recovery and three deflected passes, this year. Dempsey says he is "the best linebacker we've faced. He has ideal size for a linebacker. They play strong defense up front."

"The secondary men are all good tacklers, but they are the weakness on defense," Dempsey added, "and we're going to have to throw the ball against them."

The Saluki coach said the game is an important one for SIU, and that he felt good about it, but added that he felt that way last week against Wichita State.

"I think that we can beat them, we're capable and we're a good enough football team to do it," Dempsey said. "Last week we gave them so many things. We have to be sounder."

Wash Henry will not play again this week. He has been suffering from a leg that stiffens up from time to time.

Dempsey indicated that either Michal Coleman, Joe Croft or Clarence Robison would start at tailback.

Once again, mass quantities of tickets remain available for the SIU-Northern Illinois Homecoming football game Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

Tickets can be purchased Friday from 9 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. at the Athletics

Students can also purchase athletics event cards at the Student Center and the Athletics Ticket Office.

Spikers hope to oust stiff Homecoming competition

By Gerry Bliss
Staff Writer

Although this weekend marks Homecoming for the football team, it also marks a homecoming of sorts for the women's volleyball team, as they host the third annual Saluki Invitational this weekend at the Arena and at Davies Gym.

Among the eight teams that will be competing in the two-day event will be Illinois State, defending state champion and the eighth place finisher in last year's nationals, and Southwest Missouri State, which finished seventh in the nationals. Both rank as co-favorites to win the tournament. Last year, Alabama won the title with SIU finishing second.

Among the other competing teams are: Miami of Ohio, Tennessee Technological University, Kellogg Community College, Northern Alabama, and Kentucky.

SIU Coach Debbie Hunter feels this year's field is the best ever to compete in the annual affair. In addition to the presence of Illinois State and Southwest Missouri, the rest of the field is also made up of some tough teams. Miami of Ohio, Tennessee Tech, and Kentucky have always fielded good teams, while Kellogg Community College has been in the nationals the past two seasons.

However, Hunter doesn't dispel the Salukis' chances of winning their own tournament. "This weekend should be exciting," Hunter said. "The caliber of the teams will be very much like that of Eastern Illinois. However, I think it will be a fight between us, Illinois State and Southwest Missouri for the tourney title."

The Salukis have faced both Illinois State and Kellogg this season. Against the Rebirds, SIU has split its two games, winning the first meeting early in the season, but bowing in the finals of the Windy City Invitational two weeks ago. Kellogg also played in the same tournament, and was beaten by the Salukis.

Pool play will begin Friday at 5 p.m. in the Arena. The pool SIU will be in consists of Miami of Ohio, Southwest Missouri and Tennessee Tech. The other pool will have Illinois State, Kellogg, Northern Alabama, and Kentucky. Pool play will be a series of the best two-of-three games, with the two top finishers in each pool advancing to the semifinals Saturday.

The semifinals and championship match will be held in Davies Gym Saturday because of the Bob Dylan concert in the Arena that night. The first semifinal game will begin at 10 a.m. followed by the second game at noon. The championship will be played at 4 p.m.

"We've scheduled our Saturday play so it doesn't conflict with the football game or other University Homecoming events," Hunter said. "We want our fans to have every chance to see a field of top-notch volleyballers."

The Salukis will enter the tournament with 29-10-4 record, losing to Eastern Illinois Tuesday 14-16, 15-17, 15-11, 15-6, 10-15. However, Hunter feels her team is ready for the tournament.

"I feel like our girls will have gained enough experience through pre-season conditioning and early competition to be tournament tough for our Invitational," Hunter said.

Admission to all the games is: $2 adults, $1 high school students, 50 cents SIU students and children 12 and under.

Cager Hinds declared eligible

Complex Hinds is eligible to play basketball for the Salukis this year.

Hinds, a 26-year-old native of Guiana, a country in northern South America, has been declared a junior by the Missouri Valley Conference. The 6-10 Hinds played two years of college basketball at Guiana.

Saluki Head Coach Joe Gottfried

labeled Hinds as "an early Christmas present" for the Saluki basketball team. Hinds has been working out with the team since Oct. 16 and has shown remarkable improvement in a short period of time, according to Gottfried.

Hinds, an agriculture major, will battle junior Al Grant at center.
